Chief calls reports misleading, says nobody on gambling payroll

Press coverage of some gambling arrests in Wilmington last week has left the Wilmington Police Dept. calling for a "time out."

Chief Bobby Stewart called "very misleading" a report in Friday's Lowell Sun which alleged that a Wilmington police sergeant was on the payroll of a company charged with running a gambling operation.

"Mark (Jepson) told him (Sun reporter Patrick Cook) five times that no sergeant and no officer on the Wilmington Police Dept. was on anybody's payroll," said Chief Stewart. He said the matter had been throughly investigated with no evidence of corruption within the department.

"Because I look into it doesn't add any weight to what was alleged," said the chief.

The Sun article report was based on an affidavit filed in Woburn District Court by Insp. Jepson. That affidavit reported an unsubstantiated allegation that an officer had approached the chief and related that Officer James Cuoco had asked him who the officer was who was on Gerald Vinal's and Stephen Shepardson's payroll.

Jepson told the Town Crier that there were allegations but no evidence. He said that the bits of information in the Sun story were correct, but the substance of how it came together was all wrong.

"When you stack all the information together, it was not that way, not that way at all," Jepson said.

"We put every bit of information we have into an affidavit," he said, explaining that the affidavit was used as a basis for a search warrant, but was not considered hard evidence.

"We didn't expect him (Cook) to go after our affidavit," Jepson said.

What the affadavits did contain, though, was Jepson's first-hand observations of gambling activities at the Marine Corps League clubhouse on Chestnut Street on four Friday nights, May 18, 25, June 2, and June 15.

Additionally, the affidavit reported that Officer Paul Jepson on June 19 had discovered a door open at the Marine Corps League clubhouse. Entering the building, he found computer with an overhead projector and a screen, along with a blackboard with figures believed to be dog racing results.

However, when a raid was held on the clubhouse on Friday night, July 13, nobody was there.

One problem was that because of the allegations of a police officer was on the payroll, Wilmington police called for outside personnel to help execute the warrant. But by the time these personnel were all in place, it was 1 a.m.

The gambling at the Marine Corps League clubhouse had been previously observed as still going on at 2:30 a.m.

As to there being no activity on July 13, Chief Stewart said that he believed it to be just a coincidence. He said he interviewed people who said the games were discontinued because of complaints from the neighbors.

Fourth gambling suspect arraigned

A fourth man was arraigned on Monday in Woburn Court on charges in connection with a gambling ring broken up by three other arrests last week.

Louis Defazio of Anthony Circle, Newtonville, co-owner of Monte Carlo Rentals, was arraigned on charges of setting up and promoting an illegal lottery and organizing or financing a gambling syndicate.

The gambling operation allegedly used poker machines and "Lucky Seven" cards to reap thousands of dollars a week in profits.

Police confiscated poker machines last Tuesday from four clubs in Wilmington. At that time, three men, all allegedly involved with Monte Carlo Rentals, were arrested, David Hanley, Jerry Vinal and Stephen Shepardson. They were arraigned on Wednesday and released on personal recognizance.

The machines were at the Marine Corps League, the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Knights of Columbus.

The machines were allegedly used in a manner than involved the bartender in each of the clubs making illegal payoffs for each game won. The clubs allegedly split the profits with Monte Carlo Rentals.

Nobody from the clubs was arrested, although police informed them that they could not rule out the possibility that the district attorney might decide to prosecute. Because the club managers all chose to cooperate with police, there were no "raids," per se.

Chief Stewart said that he decided to crack down on gambling before the Feds or any other agency came in to do it.

Duke speaks

Governor Michael Dukakis was in Wilmington Center on Friday afternoon to address a gathering at the Burlington Avenue bridge. Seen just beyond the governor is DPW Commr. Jane Garvey. Back to the camera are Selectman Chet Bruce and Fire Chief Dan Wandell.

Highway work triple any previous period, says Duke

Governor Michael Dukakis visited Wilmington on Friday, to deliver a speech at the Burlington Avenue bridge, which has been closed for major repairs.

For the most part, his talk centered on the importance of good roads for the state economy.

"This is not just a bunch of highways — this is a system" he said.

He spoke of a meeting in Andover where a new biotech center was discussed. It would be accessed by Routes 93 and 125, and would provide 2000 new jobs.

"That's just one indicator of the kind of future we have in Massachusetts," the governor said.

He said that the state was undertaking three times the highway construction it had ever done in a comparable period.

"It's the best bidding climate we've ever had," he said.

He said this has not been an easy time for state employees, noting that the DPW currently has 2000 less employees than it had 15 years ago.

Also on hand at the bridge were DPW Commissioner Jane Garvey, district engineer Peter Donohue, and state reps Jim Miceli and Augie Grace.

Garvey said that the visit to the bridge was official recognition that "We're back to work at the DPW." She said that with the new tax package recently signed, there would be 70 projects worth over $20 million, funded by the increase in the gas tax.

"We finally have the resources to move ahead," said Garvey.

The governor's visit also provided the opportunity for some comments on the part of candidates for state representative.

Republican Kevin Sowyrda was on hand for the governor's visit, passing out a press release entitled, "Wilmington held hostage."

Sowyrda charged that through neglect and ignorance, the bridge had deteriorated to a point where these state 'leaders' are here now to address a serious crisis.

"The appearance of the governor and the assistant majority leader here today is a reminder that our failed bridge is symbolic of the failed state government," Sowyrda's statement said.

If the Legislature and this administration had been doing their job, the state government would need minor maintenance and fine tuning. Because of the gross negligence, it now requires a total replacement. We must replace the bridge to restore Wilmington's health and safety. Likewise, we must replace the Legislature and the administration to restore the Commonwealth's health and safety," the release said.

Democrat Rocco DePasquale, not on hand for the governor's visit, also issued a press release, charging that incumbent Miceli had failed to address the long-term problem of the bridge and the center. The press release charged that, by his "bridge only" option, the incumbent has worked against the expressed wishes of the people of Wilmington, as reflected in the last referendum vote.

"Other than providing occasional traffic lights, Miceli has done nothing to help resolve the traffic problems in town as reflected by the large number of detour signs in Wilmington," the press release said.

Miceli dismissed the press releases as political rhetoric.

"These traffic lights which he dismisses with a wave of his hand were done by the people who preceded me, despite long standing need," Miceli said. He said there was a whole list of traffic improvements which he had implemented.

He said that it was important to differentiate between the administration and a legislator who has voted consistently against every tax increase.

As for the bridge, he said that one plan which was presented would have desecrated the center of town.

He said he had been working on a long-term solution to the problem for many years, and felt that they are making progress.

Calling both statements a sham, he said that neither did anything to solve the problem.

His record speaks clear, he said. Letters have been written, and

Poker machines voluntarily removed from Sons of Italy

Two poker machines have been removed voluntarily from the Sons of Italy Hall in North Wilmington, according to Chief of Police Bobby Stewart.

Police had removed machines from four other clubs in town last week, charging the owners of the machines with gambling.

The machines at the Sons of Italy were owned by another company, Stewart said, and police had no evidence that they were being used for anything other than entertainment.

Because the machines in the other clubs had allegedly been used for gambling, then it is simply a precaution to remove them from the Sons of Italy.

Caira wants more cuts for school budget

by Arlene Surprenant

Upon the release of the state cherry sheets, Wilmington school officials are being asked by the town manager to cut another $50,000 from the FY 1991 school budget. Wilmington will be getting $103,000 less than originally anticipated in local aid.

The School Committee had made severe cuts across the board in this year's budget. According to Supt. William Fay, those cuts were softened when the water department waived $20,000 in water bills and a surplus was found in the special needs account. Part of the surplus funds were slated to go into the contingency account because there are no funds left in that area. In past years, administrators usually left $100,000 in that account to handle

Task force to be restructured?

Wilmington's Affordable Housing Task Force may be restructured in the near future. At a recent meeting, Chairman Carole Hamilton notified her board that Town Manager Michael Caira was looking into the task force's relationship with the town and the possibility of restructuring the board and making in an official board.

Board members noted though the task force has progressed at a slow pace and enthusiasm has declined, it still had work to do as a Massachusetts Housing Partner with the state.

Housing Planner Brian Wyatt suggested the town manager might be looking for a smaller board which would be more active and include a board of directors. He added this is often done in other towns.

"The smaller the numbers, the more you're going to accomplish for the town of Wilmington" agreed member Bruce MacDonald. He added he would like a member of the non-profit Wilmington Community Development Corporation to serve an the board. Wyatt said it might be helpful to have a developer on the board.

Jessica's new friends

Two-year-old Jessica Syring of Tewksbury was a guest of honor at the AIM meeting in Wilmington on Tuesday. Jessica was born with Spina Bifida, has had several operations and will require more surgery to allow better use of her legs. The AIM committee presented her mother with a check to help defray expenses. From left, Jack Lynch, Judy DiPalma, Evelyn Needham, Pauline Kozar and Ivan Palmer.

Wilmington High School loses 10 instructors, still has 54

by Arlene Surprenant

Despite financial cutbacks which will affect class size and the teaching staff, there will be few changes at Wilmington High School when students begin school September 5.

"We're going to see pretty much the same operation," said Principal Paul Fleming this week.

With the loss of 10 instructors, the school will be down to 54 teachers on its teaching staff. Enrollment, too, is down to 695 students though Fleming said he expects the final figure to be around 715 pupils.

Fleming was adamant that no more teachers lose their jobs. He said if they do administrators will have to "collapse ability levels" and include students of all abilities in a class.

There will be two new faculty members at the school this year. They are Judith Beaudet and Diane Trueblood, both of whom will teach special education. According to the principal, both hold masters degrees and are "very skilled, very experienced."

In the fall, students may find themselves in larger than normal classes. Fleming said two classes are in the 30 range, several will have 25 or more pupils, and a few will be small. There will also be some combining of classes, such as putting drafting students of various levels and combining painting with ceramics.

One of the biggest challenges over the summer was scheduling students without summer guidance personnel. Right now, said Fleming, he is finishing up the master schedule with the help of Mrs. Antinarelli, who is entering all data into the school computer. Any adjustments will be made in September. Fleming said the three guidance counselors will be starting work August 27 and student schedules will be mailed on August 29. All students are being asked to take their schedules with them when they report to school on the first day.

Fleming, who is a strong advocate for extracurricular activities, said he is pleased he hasn't been asked to cut any of his after school programs so far. About the only problem he has is with the fact that Wilmington is still in the same athletic league.

"I don't like the league we play in. I think it's unfair to our youngsters to go against bigger schools," he said.

On the positive side, the administrator plans to recognize all seasonal sports "a little bit more" and hold more rallies to keep up school spirit.

"I feel good about this school. There is a veteran faculty. They know their business. Community support has been fantastic. It's exciting to work in this kind of environment," said Fleming.

High schoolers will report to school daily at 7:35 a.m. and be let out at 2 p.m.

It's YOUR Money

DO YOU OWE A GIFT-TAX RETURN?

In the case of ordinary earned income, it's the recipient who files the tax return and pays any taxes due. But when it comes to gifts, it's the giver who is responsible for filing the tax return, even if no taxes are due. Here's how it works:

You can give away as much as $10,000 a year - $20,000, if your spouse joins in the gift - to as many people as you want. Millions of parents and grandparents have used this form of transfer to distribute assets free of estate taxes. What most have neglected, however, is to file the necessary paperwork. For gifts over $10,000, a federal gift-tax form is due by the following annual tax-filing deadline.

If you've never filed, don't panic; there's no penalty unless you've given away your $600,000 exemption from estate taxes. But it's advisable to get the paperwork done in order to protect your heirs some time in the future.

Health Center now affiliated with Winchester Hospital

Jon L. Jenkins, M.D., Chairman of the Department of Emergency Medicine at Winchester Hospital, and his team of full time emergency medicine physicians are now staffing the Walk-In/Urgent Care Center at the Regional Health Center in Wilmington, an affiliate of Winchester Hospital. The Walk-in/Urgent Care Center offers convenient health services for patients who do not have a primary care physician, or who need immediate attention for injuries and illnesses such as colds, flus, sprains and cuts.

"Our emergency medicine specialists practice at Winchester Hospital and at the Walk-in Urgent Care Center in Wilmington," Dr. Jenkins points out. "Patients are assured they receive consistent top quality care from experienced full time staff. And, of course, we are fully backed by Winchester Hospital when emergency resources are needed."

Dr. Jenkins has been in charge of Emergency Medicine at Winchester Hospital for nearly 10 years. A 1977 graduate of Harvard Medical School, he is board certified in Emergency Medicine and Internal Medicine, as is most of his staff. Recently named a Fellow of the American College of Emergency Physicians, Dr. Jenkins co-authored the Manual of Emergency Medicine: Diagnosis and Treatment, a key reference which has been translated into several languages for use in hospital emergency departments throughout the world.

Winchester Hospital assumed ownership of the Regional Health Center in the spring of 1990. In addition to urgent walk in care, the Regional Health Center offers extensive services, including internal medicine, obstetrics gynecology and pediatric /adolescent medicine. Support services available include laboratory, radiology, mammography and physical, occupational and speech therapy and exercise and health education classes.

The Walkin/Urgent Care Center is open seven days a week, 7:30 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. Patients are seen promptly by a physician who specializes in emeregency medicine and is affiliated with Winchester Hospital. The Center is located at 500 Salem Street (Rte. 62), just off Exit 40 on Rte. 93. No appointment is necessary.

Married 50 years Joseph and Bonnie Sciarappa will mark their 50th anniversary on August 25, but the celebration took place on Sunday, August 12 with a large family get-together on the family farm in North Wilmington. Mr. and Mrs. Sciarappa are shown with their children (rear) Barbara, Joe, and Mary DiCecci, along with Ray DiCecca. In front are the grandchildren, Gregg, Tracy and Melissa DiCecca.

Nominees sought for Hall of Fame

by Arlene Surprenant

Outstanding Wilmington athletes, coaches, and athletic benefactors may soon find themselves in Wilmington High School's new Hall of Fame.

A subcommittee, under the direction of school committeeman Aldo Caira, has already drawn up a list of eligibility requirements and hall of fame bylaws. The bylaws were unanimously endorsed last week by the Wilmington School Committee.

According to Caira, no more than ten candidates will be accepted into the hall of fame this year and no more than five candidates will be accepted in subsequent years. Residents wishing to submit names of possible candidates for consideration have until mid-September to do so, said Caira.

In order to be eligible for consideration, athletes must be graduated from Wilmington High for ten years and have demonstrated outstanding athletic prowess in varsity sports. In addition, athletes under consideration must have displayed ability, integrity, sportsmanship, and character, and have made an outstanding contribution to his or her team. Coaches being considered must have a minimum of five years in their chosen sport and have displayed a high degree of competency, leadership, and success. They also should have helped promote sound educational values in their athletes. Benefactors awards will be given for outstanding contribution to the success of Wilmington's athletic program.

According to the bylaws, an 11 member Board of Directors will choose the selection committee, which will have the task of choosing the successful candidates. The committee will be comprised of six directors and members of the community-at-large.

A DRY SENSE OF RUMOR

Many people dismiss cosmetics products that contain alcohol in their list of ingredients because they believe it has a drying effect on hair. However, not all alcohols are created equal. While it is true that many physicians use methyl and isopropyl alcohols for the rapid evaporative powers, these types of alcohol are rarely used in hair care products. Instead, one is more likely to find stearyl and cetyl alcohols as listed ingredients in such products as mousses, gels and moisturizers. These types of alcohol have oily, waxy textures. They act as emulsifiers to bind oil with water in an effort to condition the hair by smoothing and sealing the cuticle. Other ingredients, such as ethyl alcohol, are used to deliver special ingredients in styling products.

INSTEAD OF ASKING WHO IS AN INSIDER AND WHO IS AN OUTSIDER, WHEN IS SOMEONE GOING TO ASK: WHO IS ON THE PEOPLE'S SIDE?

Rocco DePasquale likes to call his opponent, Jim Miceli, an insider.

Which doesn't bother Jim very much since, as a former town official and current state representative, he does know the ins and outs of Beacon Hill.

What Rocco doesn't mention is his own insider connections including appointment by Governor Dukakis to the Board of Tewksbury State Hospital, his participation in Governor Dukakis' re-election campaign, or a $1000.00 contribution to the Governor's Presidential campaign.

Which is also all right with Jim because he knows this year's contest for State Representative in Wilmington and Tewksbury isn't about who's an insider or outsider but rather who's on the people's side.

Since 1977, Jim Miceli has been there for the people of the towns he represents time and again, issue after issue.

This year let's re-elect a representative who has represented our interests and protected our pocketbooks.

Environmental notes

Summer ramblings

by George R. Allan

As you try to catch some of summer's last rays through the haze and smog, here is some environmental potpourri.

You can always count of politicians for interesting ideas on the environment. Several years ago President Reagan claimed trees caused pollution.. This year we have some gubernatorial candidates who want to halt the Boston Harbor cleanup. They feel that the upgrade in the Deer Island treatment plant is a waste of money. Apparently they think that removing only 40 percent of the wastes instead of 90 percent makes for a cleaner environment. Some would ask the Federal Government for a waiver from the Clean Water Act so that the planned secondary treatment facility would not have to be constructed by the MWRA. It is similar stalling techniques in the 1970s by the Governor that got us into the present mess. If the project was undertaken then, the state would have received 75 percent of the funds from Uncle Sam. Today, only five percent of the cost is picked up by the government. The remainder is charged to the rate payers.

Do these candidates really think they can stall again? Do they think the cleanup cost will become less expensive? Maybe they should wake up and smell the roses; or better yet, smell Boston Harbor.

Taxes. Taxes. Taxes. Now this has to raise everyone's temperature a few degrees. Most people are upset at the recent tax package. The increase in the gas tax, however, is needed to rebuild our highways. Heavy traffic and road salt have taken their toll on our major highways, which are 30 years old. If you don't think the Mass. highway infrastructure is crumbling, take a good look at some of the bridge overpasses on Route 93, 128 and 495. You don't need to be a structural engineer to realize that when the concrete falls off abutments exposing reinforcing rods, we have major problems. There have been recent cases where parts of bridge decks have fallen onto unsuspecting motorists.

From what I have seen and heard, most people will accept the gas tax, provided it is dedicated to highway repairs. Let's make sure the next governor doesn't divert the revenue to other uses.

Here's an item that may be a harbinger of things to come in trash collection. Faced with increasing costs and a Prop. 2 1/2 override failure, a neighboring town has begun charging a fee for trash pickup. Homeowners have to buy stickers to place on their trash containers. Each sticker costs 75 cents. No sticker, no pick up. Needless to say, homeowners were not happy about the new system that went into effect July 1st.

No doubt people will look for ways to beat the sticker system. Can't you see it now. People going to work in free trash towns will be carrying their lunch and trash. I guess this will give new meaning to the term..."brown bagging it."

Attention Town Hall. Here is something that could protect our aquifers and save money. A town in central Mass. is burning used motor oil to heat one of its buildings. Instead of carelessly disposing of motor oil on the ground or into catch basis, residents take the oil to a recycling center where it is collected in tanks. Special burners designed to use the waste oil will then heat the DPW garage. These burners are EPA approved. The town expects that the system will pay for itself in one year. The potential benefits to the groundwater will last a lifetime.

Frankly Speaking

by Paul H. Sullivan

Quit your whining, Frank!

This week John Silber began a television ad campaign that gave Frank Bellotti a good going over, politically speaking. These ads were in response to a series of negative television commercials that Frank Bellotti ran against John Silber. In case you don't have a TV or you are a channel zapper who doesn't watch commercials, here's the general idea.

John Silber takes on the issue of Medicaid reform and states correctly, albeit undiplomatically (see Frankly Speaking, Aug. 1), that we as a society must recognize priorities even in health care. He points out, again correctly, that our society is ignoring the needs of many in our most vulnerable because we have no comprehensive health policy.

Well, out of that idea the Frank Bellotti and his people begin a crusade to convince the voters that John Silber is going to put anyone over the age of 65 out on an iceberg. The campaign begins to run television ads that show vibrant older citizens in various roles, such as gardening, playing a game of handball, and at the same time an announcer says that if John Silber has his way these people and people like them won't be entitled to health care. He very cleverly uses Silber's own words to convey this impression. All and all not a bad ad.

Well as if no one expected it, the Silber campaign, and Silber himself, cries foul. They contend that Frank Bellotti is distorting Silber's position and then the traditional political charge-counter-charge ritual takes place. John Silber states to the media and his supporters that he won't sit idly on the political sidelines while these attacks take place. He announces that he is going to "kick the hell out of Frank".

True to his word, Silber began to run negative ads of his own. These ads touched on a very sensitive subject to Frank Bellotti, corruption. "Corruption, the oldest word in the politics of the past," says the television commercial.

Well, Frank hit the roof. It's not that Bellotti has a hint of corrpution in his background, but Bellotti remembers all too well the last time he ran for governor, when unfounded rumors were spread, telling of his ties with the mob.

The Silber ads show a newspaper headline that has the word corruption in it and highlights it. The story that this headline is attached to incidentally, deals not with any corruption that Bellotti was linked to, but rather his procecution of corruption cases.

As someone who loves a good old fashioned negative campaign, I thought both sets of ads were great. But along comes Frank Bellotti whining and crying that Silber was distorting his record and he was, just like Bellotti was distorting Silber's record.

Bellotti started the mud fight and once his opponent fights back he cries foul. Well, I for one don't have an ounce of sympathy for Frank Bellotti. This is a tough racket and when you get in these battles, you really show what you're made of by how you handle the pressure. Frank is not handling it well at all. What Bellotti should do is get back to more negative campaigning, if not to help the electorate, then at least to keep me entertained. But most of all, Frank, stop your whining!

Hottest TV show in town

by Bill Conlon

Fire up the popcorn maker, plug in the VCR, open a cold one and sit back. Here comes the hottest TV ever in Tewksbury. If anyone thinks selectmen's meetings have been entertaining to watch, this could put them in a class with Hogan's Heroes reruns.

Beginning August 30, the Tewksbury selectmen will hold public dismissal hearings for appeals board members. Bruce Gordon will first answer questions on August 30, then Peter Downing on September 4, Patricia DiBiase on September 6, and Chairman of the Board of Appeals Charles Stella on September 13. Starting at 8 p.m. on all four nights, Tewksbury cable TV will air the hearings live, and in color.

A town meeting vote to reduce the appeals board to three regular members from the current five was approved by the state Attorney General, but an amendment calling for their summary dismissals was not. Selectmen are forced hold dismissal hearings to remove at least two of the current four members to meet the new requirement (Walter Maciel was appointed to the appeals board later, so his seat is safe), but Selectman Jay Kelley, at least, seems interested in seeing all four current members gone.

The Boston Sunday Globe, in the Northwest Weekly section on August 19, had a story that there is wheeling and dealing underway about the appeals hearings. The story related that deals are being negotiated, with the current plan being to accept resignations from two appeals members in order to keep the other two in office.

One town insider, however, said this week that the deal fell apart. The deal for partial immunity was supposed to be made prior to calling for the hearings. But the hearings were called, so all four will face the inquisitors. Evidence used to oust one would probably apply to all four, as most appeals board votes are unanimous. But in the glare of TV lights, anything can happen and often does.

What next? The show, obviously, must go on.

When dismissal hearings were discussed by selectmen in early July, Appeals Chairman Stella warned that if the town was going to air dirty laundry, "then let's air all of it." Bravo! Mr. Stella in particular has been quite vocal about defending the appeals board and its members. His unwavering defense has been admirable, and it's obvious he firmly believes in what he says. But his reference to dirty laundry is telling. If there is dirty laundry to be aired, the public has a God-given right to know about it, all of it, with names and particulars included. Catharsis as therapy.

Possible examples? Well, perhaps hidden partnerships, or all the foundation-framing-landscaping-interiors-etc. work done on new houses built on appeals lots, or even the real estate agents who earn a percentage without ever appearing on a deed. But these are only rumors, unless somebody starts burning bridges in public. There are few "paper trails" involved in all this, and the hidden deals are the ones that really need to be exposed. Without airing the laundry, it stays in the hamper. The public needs to know.

Starting August 30, there may be plenty of bridges ablaze, with handfuls of mud thrown to put out the flames. Or there might be secret deals made to avoid burning any bridges at all. We'll see.

Time to stock up on blank videotapes. This could get wild.

Dear Larz:

Up to this time I have said as little as possible to the media about this case, but in your article "Arbitrator rules for police lieutenant," you left out a few facts that should have been included to give the reader a clearer picture of this case.

Town Manager Michael Caira, stated that as a result of the ruling, Palmer is now a sergeant. According to civil service, Palmer's rank of sergeant has never changed and that no matter what title a town gives a sergeant, it does not change that rank in civil service standing.

In your article, you state that the department is structured with the lieutenant in charge of administration, while the command sergeant has been in charge of the uniformed officers on the road. What you failed to mention is that under this structure, the command sergeant was made equal to the lieutenant in the department's chain of command.

Chief Stewart said that the assignment of the command sergeant was not the issue, just the pay that was not negotiated. The fact that the union contract does not recognize a command sergeant's position was not mentioned. The union contract recognizes three civil service ranks, patrolman, sergeant and lieutenant with a 15 percent differential between these ranks.

Chief Stewart stated "If there was a violation of the contract it was not malicious in intent." The Arbitrator stated in his decision that "The compensation provided the command sergeant violated the collective bargaining agreement." There is no doubt that there was a violation of the contract.

Chief Stewart said the solution is to properly negotiate the pay through a motion to amend the union contract. My question is that if the Town has the money to pay a sergeant equal to a lieutenant and the need for that supervisory position to be filled, why not make a second lieutenant's position and have a chain of command that would remain in a structure consistent with civil service ranks. Also, if a second lieutenant's position is created, there would be no need to negotiate to amend the union contract. There is no doubt that the department needs more supervisors above the rank of sergeant. Over the years the department has grown, but has not expanded in the area of supervisory personnel.

Dear Larz:

No new taxes, no new ideas! Have the people of Wilmington and Tewksbury had enough? In Wilmington, they took the first step in taking back their government, they've said no to politicians who were elected merely based on association without intellectual substance. Wilmington is on the road back to responsible democracy, is Tewksbury next, or will the political "gong show," continue?

No new taxes, no new ideas! Tewksbury State Hospital, (TSH) once a major player in the health care field is now reduced from 1000 health care providers to 600 and 900 to 500 patients. No new taxes, no new ideas! Let's talk about TSH. Let's talk about co-generation steam to energy plants; the concept was to make TSH energy self sufficient, to sell back the surplus electricity to Mass. Electric and add 100,000 dollars in profit for rental property to the state treasury. Why didn't it fly? It made sense, it was logical, and it was even economically worthwhile, yet it was shot down by a man in the state house who said he didn't know anything about it. It wasn't his idea. No new taxes, no new ideas!

Oh, yes, always vote against taxes, but never give a clear reason, never give viable alternatives, and never give intelligent responses. the Steve Pierce budget he did vote for. The same budget that would have cut off all funding to TSH. Sure, close another hospital, we need more press liaisons and assistants to the assistants to hold the bathroom tissue for these termites. No new taxes, no new ideas!

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

As we approach the opening of the 1990-1991 school year I wanted to share some items of interest and concern with you and the general public.

Since the annual town meeting I have had several people tell me the "word around town" is the school department has not really laid off or cut any personnel. Part of the reason for that misconception probably lies in the fact that teachers have seniority bumping rights as part of their collective bargaining agreement. As a result, a teacher cut from the high school now appears at the middle school, and the assumption is made that no one really lost their job, they were merely moved to another location. The fact is, that the cut of a position at the high school ultimately resulted in the layoff of the junior person in that department, usually at the elementary level.

For the record, the following professional positions were eliminated from the upcoming year's program:

High school

One assistant principal, one business education, one math, one home economics, one art, one reading, one adjustment counselor, one physical education, one teacher aide, two industrial arts, one social studies, one English.

Middle school

Two computer literacy, one school nurse, two teacher aides.

Elementary

One grade one, one grade three, one gifted and talented, one computer literacy, two teacher aides.

Systemwide

One drama teacher

As a result, the following personnel were laid off:

Retirements included: John Lynch, George Cogan, Margery Spear, Harriett Jennings, Joan Walsh, Fred Bellissimo, Loddy Weisberg.

All of this was necessary to meet a budget $115,000 under the past year's operating budget. In spite of this and cuts in special education, athletics, gifted and talented, transportation and other programs, we will meet the challenge of providing quality education to the children of Wilmington. It's worthy to note that our enrollment will increase by 42 students in September, fueled by the largest kindergarten class in 10 years.

It is obvious that the schools cannot absorb future level funded or below level funded budgets. Yes, education is expensive, not as much in Wilmington as other surrounding communities, and far less expensive than ignorance.

The current trend cannot continue if we are to offer our children the proper preparation for tomorrow's world. Eighty-two percent of the Class of 1990 are pursuing higher education, prepared and motivated by a cadre of outstanding teachers who have nurtured their academic growth for the past 13 years. We are proud of our performance and ask that you continue to support education into the next decade as you have in the past.

William J. Fay, Jr.
Superintendent of Schools

Dear Larz:

To reply to last week's letter from E.H. Hodgkins:

I am glad to see that you have such a great concern for on-going issues in our community. If only more people could find the time that you had to research and comment on these issues, maybe only then could people take part and have pride in our community.

Unfortunately for me, it seems that you also did not have very much time available to completely investigate my Conservation Commission concerns on the property I own on Dorchester Street. If you had taken another 30 seconds you probably would have discovered that your statements about my cutting of red maples, removal of vegetation, and excavation of a ditch all within bordering vegetated wetlands and placement of crushed stone in a now altered bordering vegetated wetland were nothing but accusations and were proven false after all the facts were presented.

May I also point out that if you had a little more time to pay attention to other community concerns you could have attended the Affordable Housing Task Force meeting back on Feb. 2, 1989 and commented pro or con on my proposal to build and swap to the Town a $200,000 new home in exchange for vacant land that I currently abut. Or you could have attended a more recent A.H.T.F. meeting on May 31, 1990 and commented on another proposal of mine to swap a more desirable building lot for the same vacant town owned land, again in an effort to provide the Town with affordable housing. And finally if it had been advertised as is required we both could have attended an August, 1989 B.O.A. hearing a questioned why in the world would the Board waive a condition set forth at a previous official map hearing and in essence eliminate a paved roadway to service four town owned parcels designated for affordable housing.

So as you say "when are we going to wise up" and not write letters to the editor unless we have all the facts straight. Your accusations of tongue and cheek and pretense it with family membership are also false probably due to your lack of time to get the facts straight. See you at the Town Meeting if you have the time.

C.L.T. will endorse him soon. Apparently Barbara Anderson was fooled too, or maybe she just likes one-dimensional, one-agenda pols. Mister 100 percent with C.L.T., but Mister Zero with the AFL-CIO and the Mass Teachers Association. No new taxes, no new ideas! Some of you know of whom I write, yet others still haven't got a clue, which is why Tewksbury and Wilmington have been in political darkness since 1977. You've watched your local town governments get manipulated, you've seen no substantial government action take place and you experienced the increase in traffic and the crumbling of your bridges. He votes no new taxes, yet they're here and here to stay, and if for some strange reason the towns benefit from those funds extracted from our pockets, he will be right there to take credit for that accomplishment. No new taxes, no new ideas!

The Duke came to town, and there he was, Big Jim Miceli, wedging his way in on the glory, for the Duke had promised a bridge. What a dilemma? How could he take credit for getting the Duke to show and tell, when all this time he's bad mouthed the people who made the mistake of supporting the Duke? Can't have a photo, can't shake hands too long, the camera might come into focus. Enter Augie Grace, the man who got the ball rolling, the rep who got the Duke to show and to promise, and the man who loosened the grip on the highway funds.

Yah, Augie is a pro-tax guy, and he probably won't be around much longer, but he got more done in five months than Big Jim has done in 14 years. No new taxes, no new ideas! The true gutless wonder, the grand illusionist, the man of whom Mike Barnicle wrote, "couldn't hold a job as a night watchman at a Toys R Us store because they wouldn't be able to keep him from trying on the Bozo suits." Now there's something Tewksbury and Wilmington can be proud of! Next time you see Big Jim on the streets, ask him if he's locked himself in any good bathrooms lately.

TIMELESS APPRECIATION

A person who arranges and displays cut flowers is engaging in one of the oldest customs known to (wo)mankind. Scientists were fortunate enough to uncover a Neanderthal burial site in Iraq that contains the pollen from such ornamental flowers as grape hyacinth and hollyhocks. This finding dates back to about 50,000 B.C. Before this incredible discovery, researchers had not been able to find evidence of flower arranging that predated the second millennia B.C., when the Egyptians wore garlands of flowers an placed lotus blossoms in jars. As we arrange flowers to celebrate life today, it may be somewhat awe-inspiring to realize that we share a mysterious appreciation of life with prehistoric men and women.

Arrangements of brilliant Fall foliage, mums and greens make your home lovely this time of year! You'll find friendly, helpful experts nearby at A & M NURSERY AND FLORIST, 911 East Street in Tewksbury, Convenient to downtown and route 93. Wilmington senior topics

Lunch program ends

The summer lunch program will end Friday. Ann Quinn, nutritionist for our program will be closing the program until the opening of schools. All kitchen equipment has to be cleaned thoroughly and an inventory of food supplies has to be taken. Any senior having a meal delivered to their home may double up this week if they have no family member who can make up some meals for them the week and half meals will not be delivered. Call the office and let us know if you want another meal delivered to you the day before the meal is to be delivered. If anyone is not happy with the shutdown, please do not call me. Call Ann Quinn at the High School.

Horseshoes anyone?

The weather should be getting a little cooler as we approach September. Our horseshoes donated to us by the Lions Club have not seen too much action. Maybe it has been too hot. I guess you must play the game more in late summer, because I am hearing an awful lot of clanging of horseshoes in my neighborhood in the past week. If you and a friend want to play, ask for the horseshoes and poles at the office. Don't let the Lions Club think they wasted their money on us.

Town meeting August 27

Don't forget the special town meeting in the high school gym Monday evening, August 27 beginning at 7:00. As I mentioned in last weeks column the senior budget will also be up for approval along with all other department budgets. It is important that all of us as senior citizens be at this meeting. It is very important that the Council on Aging budget is passed with no cuts. To accomplish this the presence of all the seniors in the town will be needed. You may say it was passed at the regular town meeting in April. It was but, the entire budgets for the town were erased when the override of two and a half failed. After the town manager and the finance committee set a new budget this meeting was called. So we start over again. See you at the meeting.

Last whist of August

The last whist of August will be held in the function room of the Buzzell Senior Center August 27 beginning at 1 p.m. Don't forget to take a 25 cent chance on winning $5.00. Not only could you win $5, you are also contributing to the prizes for the whist games. As all the money from the chances is used for this purpose only.

September 20 social

The September therapeutic social will be a bus trip to Portsmouth, N.H. and dinner at Yokem's Restaurant. We will be using school buses. With the increased cost of coaches, and the high cost of gas we could not possibly afford them and keep the social within the reach of all our seniors. The date of the social is September 20. Signing up will begin at 9 a.m. August 23. A $7 non-refundable deposit will be required, also your choice of the meal, fish or meat and whether you will be traveling in your own car.

I have requested a function room with a dance floor. I am sure our dance instructor will take some dance tapes for those who wish to dance before and after the meal is served. If you do not wish to dance, Yokem's has a very large gift shop. The buses will be leaving the center at 11 a.m. We should be back at the Center by four.

Dog report

The Wilmington dog officer is presently holding the following dog.

Male lab-mix, yellow, no collar, picked up on Chandler Street on August 9.

Male black lab, no collar, picked up in North Wilmington August 14.

The animal control officer may be contacted for adoptions by calling 658-7845. For dog complaints, contact the Wilmington Police Department on its business line, 658-5071.

Special town meeting set for Monday night

Wilmington voters will gather on Monday night in a special town meeting to begin at 7:30 p.m. in the high school gymnasium.

Three articles are on the warrant, with Article One focusing on revisions to the town budget.

The other two articles are for the purchase of town land. Developer Mark Nelson is seeking to buy four parcels.

emergencies, said Fay.

Fay said he was unsure where the additional cuts would be made. Further reductions may have to be made in the substitute account, which he felt was already endangered; in elimination of some Class E personnel; or surplus funds slated for the contingency account.

The superintendent was firm that no more teachers or administrators be laid off. In fact, he said, this is the last year the Wilmington system can "skate through" with diminished funds.

Innocent

A Middlesex County jury on Monday delivered a verdict of not guilty on a Wilmington man who had been charged with two counts of indecent assault on a child under 16. George L. Barboza of Lincoln Avenue had been charged in February with offenses which were alleged to have occurred in 1989. The trial took place in Cambridge Superior Court.

Miceli also noted that the repairs to the bridge would have been funded even without the gas tax increase.

Outrage OF THE WEEK

There's no more water but you're getting soaked

The Massachusetts taxpayer is taxed out, yet the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority has given its director, Paul Levy, a $9,000 raise, to $115,000 annually.

Meanwhile, in the past year you and I have been socked with water and sewer rate increases of over 50 percent!

When the Legislature abdicated its responsibility of oversight of the Authorities they were the ones' who were all wet.

The CLT petition will restore legislative oversight of the Authorities. That is one reason why KEVIN SOWYRDA supports the CLT Petition.

It is one reason why you should support Kevin Sowyrda.

John Ciampa also contributed by hitting a two run inside the park homerun. Bob Whitfield had two hits, including a two run triple for Rocco's.

B&B 16 Jera-Lyn 7

Ray Robinson continued his hot bat as he went 5-5 with a double and a triple to keep B&B red hot.

Larry MacDonald and Mark Peters also had great games getting three hits each.

John Pellerin was a 3-4 with two doubles for the losing cause.

Lions Club 12-McTire 5

The Lions' Herbie Mason smacked a two run homer and a two run triple to help the Lions clinch first place.

Lions star pitcher Bill Kane was not there so replacements Jim Swierzynski, Charlie Southmayd and Tom Pazyra all combined to give Lions the win.

Jera-Lyn 10-B and B 9

With two outs, top of the seventh, down by one and runners at second and third Wally Sferrazza stepped up to the plate and grounded out. That meant Jera-Lyn won 10-9.

Jera-Lyn smacked 16 hits, including three by Dana Gilardi and Jim Cardinale.

Mark Smith also contributed to the win with a double and a triple.

Jera-Lyn 16 Rocco's 15

The same as last game, but one out, top of the seventh, runners the same but Rocco's could not manage to get the runners in.

The teams combined on 36 hits, including three from Jera-Lyn's Jim Cardinale, three from Jimmy Rappolli (including a solo homerun and two doubles) and three from Joe Franchesci for Rocco's.

Jera-Lyn 16 Stelio's 12

An eight run, 12 hit, 10 straight singles in the top half of the seventh inning made Jera-Lyn win 16-12, Jera-Lynn smacked 26 hits including three from Dana Gilardi, Jim Cardinale, Mark Smith, Ray Parker and Paul Cote.

Stelio's Ray Anderson was 4-5 for the losing cause.

Rocco's 7 Charlie's 0

In this rain shortened game, Rocco's came out on top 7-0. Pitcher Joe Franchesci pitched a great game, giving up just three hits over five innings to get the shutout. Bob Whitfield had two hits for Rocco's.

Stelio's 20 McTire 2

In this romp, Stelio's had nine runs in the first, then they were quiet for a while then exploded for 11 runs.

John O'Melia had three hits and Ed Adley had two doubles in this win for Stelio's.

B and B 10 Charlie's 4

Marc Peters and Paul LaBossiere were the stars, as Marc delivered a three run homer and Paul pitched a beauty, scattering five hits and four runs, including one bad inning, but other than that he ptiched superbly.

Dave Thompson had three hits for B and B.

Over 30
Colonial Park Liquors 17
Joe Barry's Oil 4

In this wild game, Joe Barry's fell quickly as one star player and one manager were ejected from the game on a bad call.

Back to the action, Liquors struck with 17 hits, including two doubles and four RBI's by Bobby Butters.

Colonial Park Liquors 10
Butler Sales 7

John Smith once again stole the show as he struck two mate homers for himself as he also collected three more RBI's for Butler.

Bobby Noel rang up a three-run shot also, but unfortunately for Bobby and his teammates that was not enough.

Outdoors column

A few musings and ramblings ...

by Bill Conlon

With my wife still in the hospital in Boston, my mental energies are pretty badly scatter, I'm afraid. If nobody minds, I'd like to just cover a few minor points before hopping a train south for another visit.

--- Is there a formal term for the "humps" that form on some ponds? From my observations, it seem like the muck under the lily pads rots away, and the gas from the decay causes the bottom to rise up. Humps are here one year, gone the next. They seem to be favorite hangouts for ducks, muskrats, herons, and all sorts of wildlife, and the fish seem to like hanging around the hole in the bottom underneath. I've seen a number of such decay humps, but I've never seen anything formally written about them. Anybody?

-- Another observation: This is an off-year for frogs. There were lots of spring peepers in May and early June, but the bullfrogs and green frogs, to two most notably singers at night, seem scarce this year. But then again, I've seen lots of Great Blue Herons hunting the shallows, so the frogs have plenty to worry about.

-- My apology for publishing the directions to the Nashua River. It seems the Town of Groton is now wrestling with changes for the tiny boatramp, including a bid to shut out all out-of-towners, or maybe to limit the ramp to canoes only. Too bad. The Nashua is such a nice place to fish and watch the birds.

-- Wouldn't it be nice to have a representative of the Public Access Board handy at all times? A natural pond over 10 acres in size must be accessible to the public for "fishing, fowling and public navigation." (by definition, natural means no dams, so there goes Ames Pond, Tewksbury, and Foster's Pond, on the Wilmington-Reading line) Ponds that need better access include Lake Althea in Tyngsboro, Round Pond in Tewksbury, and a host of others in the area, and the Nashua River could use a look, too. The Public Access Board, incidently, has the power to take land through eminent domain, if the need arises. Hmmm.

-- The mosquitoes haunting us in the woods these days are small, but they aren't "baby" mosquitos. Baby mosquitoes are aquatic "wigglers" and mosquitoes on the wing are full adults. The species bothering us at the moment just happens to be small at the adult stage, but don't worry. There are 43 other species that can be found in Massachusetts.

-- Equine Encephalitis is back, on its periodic upswing. The disease makes a comeback every few years before fading away again. Follow all the normal mosquito-stopping measures, such as heavy clothes and repellent that has a high percentage of DEET, and you'll be fine.

-- If they ever try to ban DEET as a potentially dangerous substance, I'll buy 100 gallons of Muskol in the green sqeeze bottles first. After years of testing and experiments, DEET is the only stuff known that will keep mosquitoes and ticks off your skin. It works -- period.

-- Rick Cooke just asked if I'll be presenting a large outdoors column this week, to fill the available space. Gee, no. Sorry. Wrong week.

-- I've been planning a column on fishing clubs in the area, but every time I turn around there's another one forming up. However, and this is worth noting, the Greater Lowell Fly Fishers is not a fly-fishing club. They support all forms of fishing, and they have the biggest membership in the area for non-B.A.S.S. affiliated clubs.

I enjoy the GLFF members-only bass derbies held once a month in the summer, although my fishing results stink. Saturday night was their members-only night derby on Lake Mascuppic from 7 p.m. until half past midnight, but I gave up and hour early. I was awful.

-- Time to sharpen the broadhead arrows and take target practice. Bow season for deer begins in a few weeks in New Hampshire, and the feathers will fly soon afterwards in the Bay State.

-- For leaky aluminum or fiberglas boats, there's simply nothing like silicon rubber in a tube, such as the stuff used for caulking tiles in bathrooms. Great!

-- Well, gotta run. See ya.

-- Tackle Box --

José Cambrils and the Aquatic Resources Education Program will hold a free Learn to Fish seminar at Ames Pond, Tewksbury, on September 8 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The event will have volunteer local fishing instructors teaching fishing essentials, from knot-tying to how to fillet and cook fish, so you can sample what you catch at the pond. José said the activity is being held as part of the MetLife Outdoors Series at Ames Pond, and pre-registration would be nice, so please call (617) 437-1508. José said they will have some 100 rods available, but bring your own if you have one.

The 10th annual Greater Lowell Fly Fisher Merrimack River Fall Derby will be held September 16, with fishing from 7 to 2 and a $15 entry fee. Ten cash prizes will go to the anglers taking the ten biggest bass and carp.

TMHS golf

All candidates interested in playing golf for the Small School Champions is urged to report to Trull Brook Golf Course at 1 p.m. Monday, August 27.

Each candidate must have had a recent physical and take a copy with them.

Nobody will be allowed to practice without one. Practices will continue during the week and each golfer will be informed of the practice schedule.

Skate swap

The Wilmington Youth Hockey Association will hold a Skate Swap at the Ristuccia Ice Arena. Those interested may drop off their skates to be tagged and priced on Wednesday, Aug. 22 from 7 to 9 p.m. or Saturday, Aug. 25 from 8 to 11 a.m.

The swap will be held Tuesday, Aug. 28 and Wednesday, Aug.29 from 7 to 9 p.m., also at the Ristuccia Arena.

Deadline

The Town Crier sports deadline is Monday night at 6 p.m. Any copy received after that deadline will not be included in that week's sports section.

Thursday marks the opening of the high school football practice season, but these Tewksbury youngsters have a head start on the fall, having worked out for the past three weeks.

Performing Arts Series at ULowell

About to begin its Fifth Anniversary Season, the Performing Arts Series at the University of Lowell Center for the Arts features nationally and internationally known artists in music, dance, theatre, and jazz. With more than 20 events over the year, the center presents performances both on campus at Durgin Hall and in downtown Lowell at the Lowell Memorial Auditorium, St. Anne's Church, the First Baptist Church, and The Whistler House Museum of Art.

The season opens on September 23 with Hello, Dolly! in a national touring company production starring Mimi Hines and Phil Ford. This record-breaking Broadway musical is filled with eccentric characters, merrily mixed up plot lines, resplendent costumes, rabble rousing numbers and just plain high spirits and good natured gusto.

On October 5, the Virtuosi Wind Quintet, five first rate New York musicians, will perform classics from traditional and contemporary woodwind repertoire.

The Center will present jazz trumpet player Tiger Okoshi on October 13. A special event, not part of the Performing Arts Series, the performance is free and open to the public.

The series continues on October 20 with Pilobolus Dance Theatre, a sextet of dancing iconoclasts known for their zany originality and compelling, rollicking brand of modern dance.

On October 27, New York theatre and cabaret singer Leigh Berry will join the Jazz Pops Ensemble and Wintersauce Chorale for a performance of Broadway show tunes. There'll be cabaret seating and the floor will be cleared for dancing.

That powerhouse of jazz the Count Basie Orchestra, and guest vocalist, will smoke and wail with the swinging standards of the Big Band Era on November 2.

Clarinetist Daniel McKelway and three other award winning young artists on piano, cello and violin will join forces on November 9 for an evening of traditional and adventurous chamber music.

Next, on November 16, the Gregg Smith Singers, the most recorded classical vocal ensemble in the world, will perform everything from music of the Renaissance to Broadway show tunes.

Three programs will light up the holiday season. First, on December 2, the Worcester Chorus and Orchestra with guests vocalists will return to this year's series with an encore performance of Handel's Messiah.

Then on December 9, Durgin Hall will resound with the heroic, shinning sounds of Solid Brass, 10 orchestral bras players plus percussionist.

Finally on December 15, the Boston Camerata will perform "Midnight Mass on French Christmas Carols," a radiant program of Baroque music based on French Christmas Carol melodies.

The first performance of the new year will be "The Lunatic, the Lover, and the Poet," On January 25. Tony award winning actor Brian Bedford will interpret some of Shakespeare's best known characters from the cynical King Lear to the bumbling Bottom in Midsummer Night's Dream to the conniving hunchbacked Richard III.

Special subscription packages are available for the Performing Arts Series. Audiences can design their own series by choosing three or more events from among the 22 offerings on the schedule. With a subscription series, subscribers can save up to 25 percent on single ticket prices.

To request a brochure describing the Performing Arts Series, call the center for the Arts at (508) 934-4444, weekdays from noon to 6 p.m.

This year's performing arts events are sponsored by the following area businesses: Lowell Hilton, Banners Restaurant, Shawmut Arlington Trust, La Boniche Restaurant, Lowell Sun, and Princeton Properties.

The only town around with its own Chamber of Commerce

by Tony Accardi

Approximately 30 years ago the town of Wilmington began to attract large businesses such as Avco, Sweetheart Plastics, and Altron. In order to handle the many unique problems that resulted with this influx of industry, local businessmen joined together to form the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce.

The Wilmington Chamber now located at Heritage Commons Condominiums, has come a long way since the days when Rep. Fred Cain walked Main Street soliciting new members.

According to Executive Director, Joan O'Rourke, the Chamber boosts a membership of over 200 businesses and sole proprietorships. Founded in 1961, the Chamber has grown continuously. Even with today's difficult economic conditions, membership is still on the rise.

The prestige of the Chamber is evident by the status of its office holders. All Materas, Director of Human Services at Textron, currently serves as President of the organization. Joan O'Rourke, a woman who has proven her merit in the Wilmington Community for many years, acts as the Executive Director and the heart and soul of the Chamber.

Both these individuals have proven that membership in the Wilmington Chamber is far from just an honorary position. O'Rourke contends that she diligently encourages members to be active and strive to help make a better business atmosphere for all.

A perfect example of this is the recent fight against the Reading Electric Light Company. A six year long battle, spearheaded by the Chamber to bring what O'Rourke calls, "fairness to all rate payers," resulted in a compromise that will bring millions of dollars of revenue to Wilmington.

Although the Chamber was not completely satisfied with the results of this compromise, the Reading Light issue did show that the organization was willing to roll up its sleeves and fight for what it believed to be best for both the businesses and citizens in the Community.

The success of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce is even more impressive when one considers that no other bordering town has a local Chamber. According to Sandy Murphy, Director of Member/Services, "business people are utilizing the Chamber to gain exposure and make local contacts."

The recent decline in the Massachusetts economy has brought the most recent huddle for the Wilmington Chamber. Faced with recession and economic predictions of further problems, the Chamber is currently assembling programs to aid its concerned members.

Sandy Murphy is planning a number of programs to help prepare the local business person to "weather the storm. Our role is to make local business individuals realize that they are not alone in their plight. One of the more innovative initiatives being tentatively proposed for the upcoming year is a round table discussion.

Led by Executive Exchange, the focus will be how to deal with commerce in a slow market.

When asked, what she considers to be the Chamber's most significant accomplishment, Director Joan O'Rourke answers with conviction and pride "the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce has gained credibility in the business community as well as establishing itself as a source of valuable information.

Personalized education for Wilmington students

by Arlene Surprenant

The biggest change in the Wilmington School system in September may well be at the North and West Intermediate Schools. Both schools will be utilizing a full middle school concept.

According to Superintendent of Schools William Fay, the middle school concept places emphasis on the individual child and enhances a youngster's self-image.

"I guess you could almost call it personalized education," Fay told the Town Crier Tuesday.

Under this concept, there are no set periods in the day. Some classes may only run for a half hour while others may stretch to an hour and a half. There are no bells signaling the end of class either. Teachers will be teaming up to better know their students and quickly identify needs and problems that arise. Under the middle school philosophy, common planning time is set aside for teachers and joint student projects encompassing more than one subject area may be undertaken.

Except for math, all ability levels will be grouped in each class, something which Fay says will help remove any stigma attached to being in a low ability track. Everything really boils down to the teachers' ability to recognize student abilities and teach accordingly.

Fay said while some teachers are admittedly nervous as they embark on this new format, administrators Jim Jordan and Michael Tikonoff have worked hard all last year to orient their staffs in the new concept.

"The teaches, to me, are still the last bastion of heroes and heroines," said Fay and, along with the parents themselves, are being called upon to nurture students at the sixth, seventh, and eighth grade levels.

The biggest change at the elementary level will be the lack of a formal computer program. At the Shawsheen and Woburn Street schools, the teachers will assume the role of computer instructors. The librarian at the Wildwood School is already well versed in the intricacies of computer technology, said Fay. Elementary class sizes will be larger, growing from last year's average of 24 1/2 pupils to 26 1/2 students. Fay foresees with such a large kindergarten class this year and a "growth spurt" at the elementary level, he will have to "recapture" the Boutwell School when its lease is up in 1992 and create more class space by the mid 1990's. Because of a new kindergarten class at the Shawsheen School, Fay plans to seek another bus at the school, bringing the total number of buses up from nine last year to 10 in September.

The curriculum committee, now chaired by science instructor Dick DeRosa, has been meeting during the summer to assemble all information gathered last year. With general goals and objections already laid out, sub committees will meet all next year to analyze various curriculum areas, determine what is appropriate to keep, and recommend needed changes in the curriculum overall. By the end of the year, said Fay, he hopes to be in a position to assemble a rough draft of the entire K through 12 program. Especially important, added the superintendent, is a mechanism to assure the constant review and updating of the entire curriculum.

"To do all this work and then walk away from it will just be a tremendous waste of time," he said.

Twenty-five teaching and staff positions have been eliminated this year, resulting in the layoff of 22 people, said Fay. In addition, Shawsheen Principal Robert Coffill has submitted his letter of resignation, effective September 1. Coffill has accepted a position as principal at the Lebanon High School in New Hampshire. Fay refers to Coffill as "an outstanding young administrator" whose ability and enthusiasm helped the Shawsheen School to grow in the short time he's been that school's administrator. Fay will recommend to the School Committee tonight (Wednesday) that Assistant Principal Michelle Nortonen be named acting principal until the post is filled.

All students will begin the new school year September 5. Elementary students will be in school from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. while middle schoolers will attend from 7:30 a.m. to 2:20 p.m.

Water Witch 173 years young

By JAMES B. GOLDSMITH

Before the North Reading Fire Department teamed up to restore its 19th century handtub, the venerable Water Witch looked like it had one too many Halloween tricks pulled on its tired old body.

Today, thanks to the 19-man department, the valuable tub has been completely overhauled and restored to working condition. Sidney McIntire, a retired NRFD employee, recalls the day, 27 years ago, in 1963 when he and former fire chief Ralph J. Sweetland, Sr. went to Smith's barn on Winter Street, North Reading, to see the tub. McIntire recalls peering into the dilapidated barn. Lo and behold, sitting right under the hole in the roof was the ancient and honorable Water Witch looking like the last rose of summer. It was but a shell of its once proud self - an 1816 piece of firefighting apparatus purchased by citizens of the North Parish of Reading, elected to membership in a private fire company.

Asked what his thoughts were when he first saw the Water Witch, Sidney McIntire smiles and says, "What a ball I'm going to have." Within a few weeks NRFD firefighters William Schumaker, Donald Corson, and Nelson Harris got together one weekend and moved the handtub to the fire station on a small flatbed trailer. McIntire, the man responsible for coordinating the restorations, said, "I was on vacation when they moved it. The work was done in the recreation room down cellar."

The tub was moved from Smith's barn about 1969 when Sidney McIntire, an experienced woodworker, rolled up his sleeves and turned to his tools. He started by replacing the water box and determined exactly what had to be replaced and how the work would be done. That was 1970-1971, and Sidney McIntire was badly injured three years later. Without McIntire's guidance and leadership, the Water Witch restoration floundered for awhile, but eventually it got back on track and great progress was made in the winter of 1983.

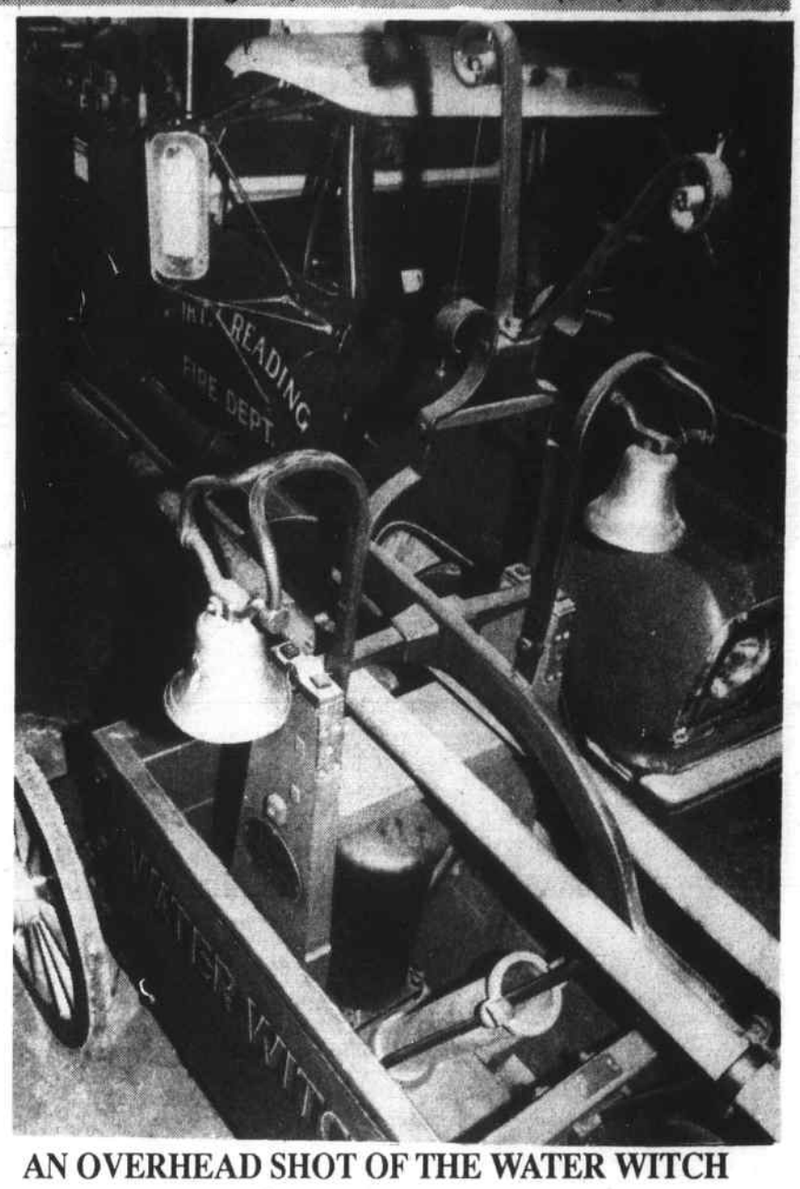

BUDDY McINTIRE, AN ACCOMPLISHED WOODWORKER, spearheaded the drive to restore the 173-year-old engine. He is shown holding the bell's clapper, and perhaps wondering what it would have been like to answer an alarm with this handtub. Engine 4's pump panel is in background.

The major problem and challenge facing the restoration team was how to carefully disassemble the Water Witch and replace its rotted and worn out parts without a set of blueprints or instruction manual. McIntire, a slim, intense man, says, "This was the most worrisome thing. I made my own plans by carefully measuring before I took it apart." Buddy McIntire also made certain no other firefighter took measurements or disassembled the ancient engine. This was extremely important since the lead man made detailed sketches and plans which showed him exactly how the piece fit together.

The 65-year-old woodworking wizard continues his story: "I'm great for drawing plans to restore things in the same position." He needed two plans for the floor and explains, "I could have made it with one oak plank, but that wasn't the way it was built." This brings to light another extremely important part of this significant restoration; all work on the Class B engine was done by hand.

What was the most complicated and expensive part of this restoration project? Private Robert McCabe, the restoration's unofficial historia, says it was making the tub's four replica wheels. Sidney McIntire agrees and says it was a real challenge to determine accurate wheel measurements since the original wheels were badly rotted. However, the department did have one good photograph to work with and the late Leo Smith, a call firefighter, made good use of it. McIntire explains Smith took the water box's dimensions from the photo. Then he determined the wheel dimensions from the photo and came up with a scale which provided accurate wheel dimensions.

Meanwhile, William Schumaker, a large friendly firefighter, found

FM TALK: Our gallivanting-around correspondent is away this week; until his return another edition of off-beat tidbits on American history to keep you readers busy:

Gene Smith, in his book, "The Shattered Dream," writes about an interesting political situation that developed at the end of World War I. Franklin Roosevelt wanted desperately to become president, but he worried that his young age - thirty-six - would hamper his efforts to win the Democratic nomination. Roosevelt decided to launch a campaign to nominate a friend of his as the Democratic candidate for president in 1920. His friend was a forty-five year old fellow by the name of Herbert Hoover.

Roosevelt had one obstacle preventing him from getting the campaign underway: He wasn't sure whether Hoover was Democrat or Republican. Embarrassed by his lack of information, Roosevelt turned to the daughter of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge to learn Hoover's party affiliation. Roosevelt discovered that Hoover was a Republican and the knowledge dashed Roosevelt's plans to make his friend the Democratic candidate for president that year. Ironically, Roosevelt, in spite of his young age, was nominated as the Democrats' vice-presidential candidate that year. Herbert Hoover failed to land a spot on the national ticket in 1920.

Mark Sullivan, author of "Our Times," also wrote an interesting recollection of a political event that occurred in 1920. This time the focus was on the Republican party. Their convention was about to get underway: Senator Knox of Pennsylvania appeared to be the likely candidate for vice-president. They approached Hiram Johnson of California. Johnson's response was clear cut: Either he was going to be their choice as presidential candidate, or he didn't want anything to do with their plans.

Mt. Washington valley Seniors' week

All "Seniors," those 60 years young or more, are invited to save during the week of September 9 through 16 while enjoying the classic New England villages, feeling the first crisp air of fall, and taking in the beautiful mountain scenery of Mt. Washington Valley.

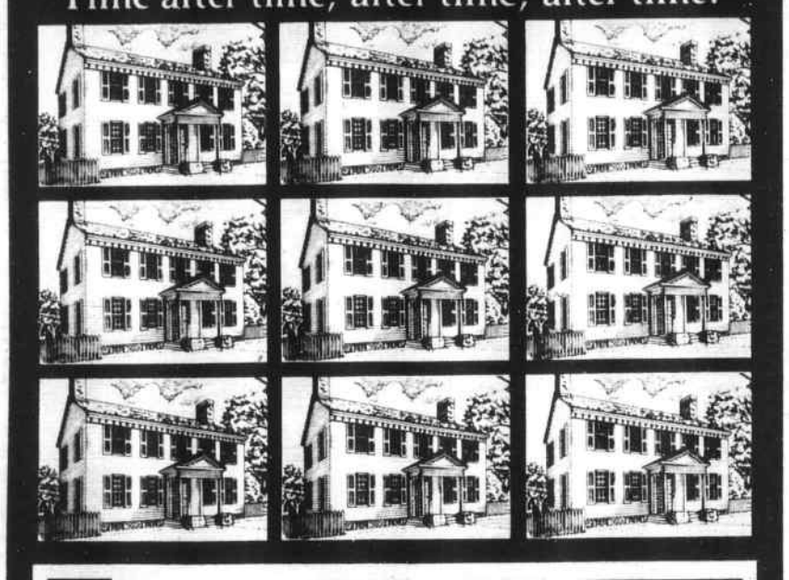

Representing an ideal time to visit the villages of Eaton, Conway, North Conway, Bartlett, and Jackson in the heart of the White Mountains, "Seniors' Week" will mean a 10 to 15 percent discount at many regional lodging and dining establishments for those born in 1930 or earlier. Special activities such as a Mt. Washington Valley Arts Association auction and film presentation, the Conway Scenic Railroad's annual Railfans' Day on September 15, plus historic and scenic tours of the Valley have been planned.

Sporting activities for all ages are an inherent part of any Mt. Washington Valley vacation. In addition to 1,200 miles of hiking trails through the 776,000-acre White Mountain National Forest which includes and surrounds Mt. Washington Valley, and the leisurely canoeing on the Saco River, golfing on scenic courses has been popular here for almost a century.

To find out more about Mt. Washington Valley's fall foliage and their "Seniors' Week," or to make reservations, please call (603) 356-3171 for your free vacation guide, or write: The Mt. Washington Valley Visitors Bureau, P.O. Box 2300P, North Conway, New Hampshire 03860.

BAYBANK MIDDLESEX recently conducted an art exhibit at its Burlington headquarters and among those on hand were: (l to r) Naimisha H. Desai, regional finalist holding her work entitled "batik"; Honey Doctoroff, program coordinator for Tufts Associated Health Plan, the originator of the program; Dick Tufenklian, Executive Vice President of Baybank Middlesex; and regional finalist Janet Marzino from Stoneham holding her work "Shattered Dreams," a portrait of President John F. Kennedy.

Roving from S-1

Backers, in confidence, told Johnson that Knox had a heart condition that would most likely kill him before he finished his term in office; therefore, Johnson had a good chance of becoming president. This prospect still turned Johnson off as the potential vice-presidential candidate.

At the 1920 Republican convention Harding ultimately received the party's nod as candidate for president. Once again, Johnson refused, insisting that he should have been nominated as the party's presidential candidate.

Before Harding's first term in office was completed, he died. Ironically, Johnson would have become president anyway. Instead, Harding's vice- president, Calvin Coolidge, moved up to the role of president of the United States.

Moving on, briefly: Warren G. Harding was the first president to drive an automobile. One of Harding's closest friends was Norman Thomas, who was, at the time, leader of the American Socialist party. Thomas was a candidate for president on six occasions. Harding's death was predicted by his physician, Dr. Emmanuel Libman, eight months prior to the massive coronary that took his life. Harding was a newspaper publisher for thirty-five years before becoming president. As president, he believed that his newspaper experience would help him create better press relations. He instituted impromptu press conferences, which went well until one day he made an embarrassing mistake: Harding did not know whether Japan was a Pacific island or part of the Asian mainland. As a result, the president decided to return to the old method of holding press conferences: Reporters were required to submit questions before each press conference.

In "The Americans: The Democratic Experience," author Daniel Boorstin writes about the time Arthur D. Little, founder of the research company, set out to prove that a silk purse could be made out of a sow's ear. From a Chicago meat -packing company, Little ordered a gelatin produced entirely from sows' ears. The gelatin was then spun into an artificial silk thread, which was then made into silk purses. The purses were put on display, and a report was published describing the process. Little had accomplished his goal: He had disproved the old proverb, "You can't make a silk purse out of a sows' ear."

In "The Story of Advertising," historian James Wood writes about the methods employed in 1920 by the makers of Lucky Strike cigarettes to get women to start smoking. Among their strategies: Women were told that Lucky Strike cigarettes would help women keep their youthful slenderness, that Luckies were better for them than fattening sweets, that there was "real health" in Lucky Strikes, that 20,679 doctors maintained "Luckies are less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes."

"Men have a much better time of it than women. For one thing, they marry later. For another thing, they die earlier." _ H.L. Mencken.

Make it a good week.

Baybank Middlesex employee art fair in Burlington

Baybank Middlesex recently conducted an "On My Own Time" art exhibition at its corporate headquarters in Burlington. Entries came from the employees of the company's 50 branches with the exhibits being varied, tasteful and extremely difficult for judges to select winners.

The program is in conjunction with the Tufts Health Plan which conducts such programs at numerous businesses throughout the state. Honey Doctoroff is the program coordinator and worked closely with Baybank officials in evaluating the effort in Burlington.

Baybank dedicated a large second floor exhibit hall for the numerous works and employees were also allowed to select what they felt were the most outstanding in the exhibit.

The level of creativity varied from watercolor painting to hand-knit sweaters. Numerous craft items were also included from handmade wooden decorator plaques to quilts.

Those selected as most outstanding will go on to compete against other entries from other businesses.

A list of those Baybank employees works that will go to regional evaluation are: Colleen Baisley, Lowell, crewel; Ruth Beckett, Bedford, quilting; Hugo DeAngelis, Waltham, pencil drawing; Naimisha Desai, Billerica, batik; Philip Dunn, Beverly, drawing; Helen Gold, Framingham, drawing; Jan Keith, Framingham, photograph; Janet LaFlamme-Marzino, Stoneham, drawing.

Also, Peter Lane, Haverhill, photograph; Paula Malley, Everett, knitting; Susan Merchant, Waltham, textiles; Ida Minichino, Burlington, knitting; Karen Poore, Malden, oil painting; Sharon Chung-Ling Wu, Pinehurst, painting; Joseph Boczenowski, Malden, rug hooking.

WEAVING, DYEING PROVIDE END-OF-SUMMER FUN

Two ancient textile crafts - weaving and dyeing - will be taught at special workshops for children ages 8 to 13 at the Museum of American Textile History.

From 9 a.m. to noon Wednesday, August 29, a weaving workshop will include a variety of crafts projects, which may use God's Eye weaving, straw looms, and table looms.

The dyeing workshop will be held from 9 a.m. to noon Thursday, August 30. Participants will learn the principles and history of dyeing while experimenting with various safe dyes. Children will make their own tie-dyed t-shirts and yarn samples. Because the dyeing will be done outside, the rain date for this workshop is Friday, August 31.

The cost of each workshop is $10 plus $5 for materials. Reservations, which are limited to 20 children, must be made in advance by sending a check to the Museum of American Textile History, 800 Massachusetts Ave., North Andover 01845.

For more information, please call the Museum at (508) 686-0191.

The solution to prescription medication misuse is simple. Medi-Message.

As part of our community service, the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy and Allied Health Sciences offers Medi-Message, an automated telephone message system providing up-to-date prescription medication information, free of charge, 254 hours a day.

Water Witch

the George E. Daniels Wagon Factory in Rowley, and took the wheel remnants there. Since each axle is different size, Bruce Thompkins, owner of the wagon factory, made certain these dimensions were incorporated in the replica wheels.

What does the classic Water Witch mean to the 19 men who restored it? Perhaps Richard Harris, president of the National Association of Firefighters, Local 1857, says it best, "It brought the people, men, together - it made you feel good."

What is its real value? The popular fire chief answers, "It's history - the length of time it has served the community; before the Civil War. It's a piece of equipment that still functions today and it's been used as a history lesson at the junior high school level." During the town's celebration of the U.S. Constitution's 200th anniversary, September 19, 1987, Chief Shaw and the Water Witch taken to the NRHS where the handtub joined other exhibits that graphically traced North Reading's history.

Steve Pepper says that while a group of five or six men worked on the restoration, it wouldn't have been possible without the cooperation of the entire 19-man department. The likeable man explains that while five or six men did the work, they needed other firefighters to handle their shift assignments.

Are there any other improvements McIntire would like to see made to the ancient Water Witch? Yes. Sometime soon he hopes to place a plastic liner, 1/16-1/8" inside the water box. Originally tar was used to seal the water box to the bottom and between the oak planks.

The Water Witch's history is very interesting and indicates how important this classic handtub was in protecting life and property during the 19th century.

Chief Shaw and his men all agree the perfect ending to this restoration will be written when North Reading's Water Witch finds a home of its own. Perhaps there is a 20th century benefactor, a modern day Jacob Barnard, who will dig deep into his pockets and find the money or provide the land to make this dream come true.

Flatliners

by Rochelle Flynn

"Flatliners" Starring Kiefer Sutherland, Julia Roberts, Kevin Bacon, William Baldwin, Oliver Platt. Directed by Joel Schumacher. Written by Peter Filardi. Produced by Michael Douglas, Rick Bieber. Rated R.

Where there's smoke, there's fire. Sometimes that smoke gets in your eyes.

Both of these cliches apply to director Joel Shumacher's latest horror flick, "Flatliners." This is a movie with a brilliant idea at the core, but is eventually reduced to an exercise in which style weights in more heavily than substance.

Keifer Sutherland stars as a brilliant, obsessive, slightly unhinged medical student. Sutherland decides he can bring back the mysteries of the dead if he allows himself to be killed, as in completely brain dead, for a minute or so before his medical school chums resuscitate him.

Kids being competitive by nature, his compadres each vie for the honor of staying dead for longer and longer periods. Smart, forceful Julia Roberts outbids the fellas for the "honor" of going under for nearly five minutes.

Keifer Sutherland, Julia Roberts in Flatliners

Needless to say, there is a hitch here. It seems these young docs carry back more than a knowledge of life after death. The extra baggage of past sins comes strapped to their psyches. That's right. Past digressions come back to haunt them. Scary thought. And the range is wide. There is Kevin Bacon, who once taunted a young classmate. William Baldwin would tell a woman anything to get her in the rack. Roberts and Sutherland both have larger scores to settle.

As eerie as this sounds, as true and telling as the performances are, the execution never lives up to the flick's potential. The largest problem is that the script is weak, especially when contrasted to Shumacher's extremely stylized direction. This medical school looks more like a haunted mansion than a hospital. The city could be Dresden after the war. The mood takes over the picture before you realize there isn't enough substance to compete with all of those blue-black backdrops, wet streets, steam and smoke.

The very concept of having your past come to life and haunt you is creepy. The setting tells us to be scared. The photography is quirky and intense. But the script just doesn't provide the jolts it should have.

Fortunately, the cast is top notch. We believe that Sutherland's forceful presence can lead this group down the road to hell. He balances this bravado with enough intelligence to know when to be afraid. Roberts and Bacon are both convincingly strong and charming, while Oliver Platt provides the comic relief without falling into a bumbling coward routine. He's scared, but he's also smart and capable. Womanizer Baldwin is enjoyable, even if his part sort of fades away with out a resolution.

It's just too bad that Shumacher couldn't decide if he wanted to make an off-beat, yet plausible flick or if he wanted to reduce his audience into a quivering mass of frightened filmgoers. Still, it's an entertaining flick, just not all it could have been.

SHORT TAKES

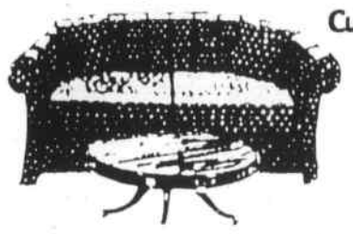

Flatliners is the surrealistic story of five hot medical students who decide to "flatline" for a few minutes and then come back with the secrets of the grave. Only they carry back more than great dream sequences. More eerie than scary, this is a story bogged down in atmosphere. A great idea that just never lived up to its potential. Rated R.  1/2

Problem Child is a silly slick about a yuppie couple out to buy the one thing they can't get on their own - a kid. Only they get the Kid from Hell. Mildly amusing, the story tries too hard to make us laugh with an overdose of physical comedy that is none too inventive. Rated PG. * 1/2.

School notes

by phyllis nissen

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

--Woburn School Committee Chairperson Carl Torrice has been elected to life membership in the Massachusetts Association of School Committees.

A member of the Woburn School Committee since 1955, Torrice is now in the third year of a four-year term. He has been a member of the Goodyear Elementary School PTO for 40 years, serving from time to time as PTO president; a member of the Woburn Recreation Commission for 35 years; and chair of the Woburn Lodge of Elks Youth Committee.

Other honors bestowed upon him include the Pro Deo et Juventute (for God and Youth) award from the Archdiocese of Boston Catholic Youth Organization, the Kiwanis Key Club Award, and admission to the Channel 5 Good Sports Hall of Fame.

He was instrumental in establishing counseling services for elementary school students; he believes in a hands-on approach to his position which has even included volunteer construction consulting and masonry work in the schools; and he's known throughout Woburn for his accessibility and dogged approach to accomplishment.

--Stoneham Central Elementary School students immediately topped off a major unit on 100 by beginning to count backwards on their number lines to the first day of summer vacation.

But who's now counting the number of vacation days left?

--The Burlington Educators Association (teachers) and School Office Personnel (clerical staff) have reached agreement with the School Committee on individual three-year contracts.

The approximately 284 classroom teachers received a five percent pay raise beginning July 1st, to be followed by a four percent increase for the first half of the 1991 school year and a two percent increase for the second half of that year. The final year of the contract will see a five percent raise, the raises related in part to cost of living increases.

Having just completed his first year in town, Superintendent of Schools Robert Neely feels the contract provides incentives to improve teaching capabilities and skills through more staff development and educational courses.

--"A very important environmental concern is air pollution," says Wakefield's Atwell School no longer sixth grader Sonya Collura in her WCRB environmental spot.

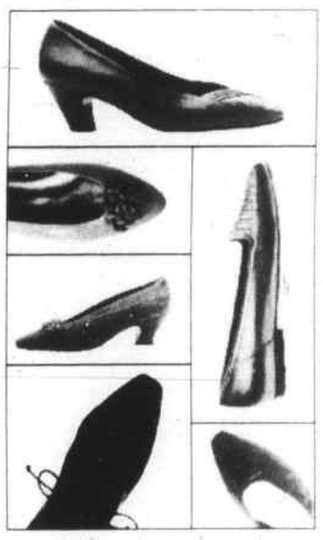

"I listened to the news, and I heard something I couldn't believe. U.S. industries dump at least two and a half billion pounds of harmful pollutants into the air each year!

"Some people are trying to stop this, but other people only care about the money they're making, and won't stop making products which pollute the air.

"It's like killing yourself for money, which won't do any good at all!"

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

It isn't generally known that I was a boxer in my younger days. My cousin, Joseph Aloisi, was my manager. One night at the Lynn Arena, I looked at the size of my opponent across the ring and my knees started to buckle. "What are you worried about?" Joe shouted. "If he was any good, he certainly wouldn't be fighting you." After every round my manager's words were, "You're doing great, he hasn't laid a glove on you." After the fourth round, my head was aching, my nose was almost broken and I nearly fell off the stool waiting for the bell for the fifth round. I shouted to Joe, "Will you for crying out loud keep your eye on the referee because someone in that ring is punching the daylights out of me!"

Folks, we wait in vain for our ships to come in - if we haven't sent one out. Frank Hogan has a luxurious beard. His barber asked him, "Frank, do you want your beard trimmed?" "No," Frank replied, "Just cut a hole in the middle of it so my mother can see the necktie she gave me for Christmas!" When Paul Richard was informed he won the No-Bell prize for inventing the "door-knocker" he exclaimed, "Aw, who gives a rap?"

Have you ever looked in the rear view mirror of your car while driving down a super highway and seen a mammoth 18-wheeler tractor trailer barreling up behind you? Well, that's when mobile phones come in handy - you can reach over and "Dial a Prayer." My neighbors had their usual Saturday night fight but it was nothing much this time - only two police cars. A foot is a device that finds furniture in the dark.

Not one person in a thousand can describe a "Spiral Stairway" without using his or her hands. At a recent school committee meeting a question was debated on whether or not seat belts should be installed on school buses. A middle aged man with a bandage on his right ear and apparently suffering from battle fatigue got up and said, "Seat belts would help, but on the bus I drive, straitjackets would be a lot better!"

George Gould walked across a field to where a farmer was plowing and said, "Sir, I just ran over your rooster but I'm willing to replace it." "Fine," the old farmer said, "Let me hear you crow." A clerk at the perfume counter told my sister, Maureen, "Look dearie, if this darn stuff really worked would I be standing here for the last ten years selling it?" The following bumper sticker tells it all, I owe, I owe, so off to work I go!"

At my wedding many years ago, an usher asked a woman, "Excuse ma'am, are you a friend of the groom?" "I should say not!" she exclaimed, "I'm the bride's mother!" Kathy is bowlegged and I'm knock-kneed, so when we are walking towards you we look like two quotation marks. The teacher asked Joe Ravida, "Joseph, can you tell the class how Abraham Lincoln died?" "How the heck do I know," Joe shouted, "I didn't even know he was sick!"

MDC Officer Julie Wahlefield stopped Dennis Tully and told him, "I'll have to hold you for further questioning." "Officer," Dennis said, "You're so beautiful you could hold me forever!"

Personality Winners: Sharon Brendine, Gail Tuzzolo, Robert W. Neal, Sue Trousil, Rev. Vincent Mellone, Rev. Charles Collins and Gerard F. "Spike" Boyle, all of Woburn; Ed Barker, Paul Mahoney (of Mahoney's Garden Center), Rev. Francis McGann, Florence Gosselin R.N., Catherine Fleming, David Kudan Rabbi, all of Winchester; Dennis Licari, William Phelan Sr., George and Ginny DeVeau, Firefighter Philip Rogers, and Jim and Ginny Beebe, all of Wakefield; Lee Prebble, Fr. Martin Ryan S.J., Saul Ziner CPA, Rev. John Crispo, Kay Cavanaugh and Forest (Woody) Knowles, all of Burlington; Andy Hartung, Fire Lieutenant Jim McLaughlin, Amy Whelan, Lynn Tropeano, Dick Burnham, Deacon John R. Turner and Christine Simpson, all of Stoneham; Kate Driscoll, Lysa Stortz, Traci Dunne, Danielle Sorbello, Kristen McKinnon and Linda McHugh, all of Reading; Kathleen Costello, Becky Boyle, Tisha Adams, Meghan Conlon, Deana Martel and Katie Ronan, all of Tewksbury; Danielle Perkins, Lucille Pothier, Susan Mundy, Rebecca Ann Tompkis, and Michael and Marilyn Bozzuto, all of North Reading; Renne Vachon, Nicole Dussault, Shannon Lyman, Jen Mullins, Jill Branley, Laurie Johnson and Kerri Lyman, all of Wilmington; Arthur DeRosa, Peter and Donna Aloisi, Carmine Mastrogiovanni CPA, Edward Flaherty CPA, and Richard Rebidue, all of Lynnfield.

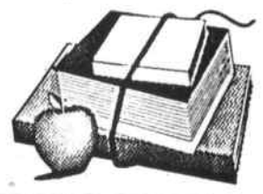

This is only for the "young at heart" and I hope you dear reader are one of them. "Why did 'Delaware' a 'New Jersey'? 'I-da-ho' but 'Al-ask-a." Now you know why an ice cream was named after me - tutti fruiti. "Your honor," a sailor told Judge John MacLeod (now retired), "the whole fight started when that man wanted to use the phone as I was talking to my girlfriend. He pushed open the door of the telephone booth, reached in, grabbed me by the collar and threw me out in the street." Judge MacLeod said, "I can see, young man, why you were irritated. Is that when the fight started?" "No, your honor. I got furious when he reached in the telephone booth again, grabbed my girl and threw her out on her ear too!"

The smartest kid in the class was Tony Stack. The teacher, Miss Sullivan, said one day, "I'm proud of Tony. He's the only one who knows where the Azores are." Wayne Higden said, "Why the heck wouldn't he know where the Azores are. He's the only one in the class who hides things!"

George Gould called me up and said, "Chips, I rode by your garden this morning. No wonder you have such beautiful plants. That scare crow I saw keeps the birds away." "George," I said, "for your information, I don't have a scare crow. That was Kathy you saw picking tomatoes!"

The Super Star is a great humanitarian and a human dynamo, Patricia Millward.
